PAINTS THE GREAT OUTDOORS

Gary Huber was raised in Pennsylvania farm country and has always had both feet firmly planted in the great outdoors. He explored the east coast, midwest and American west before settling in Wyoming. There he paints both in the studio and outdoors through all seasons.

Gary brings to the easel his own unique sense of composition and light borne from lifelong outdoor study and years of experience. He imbues his work with atmospheric depth and mystery inviting the viewer to enter and explore.

He has captured many Best of Show, First Place and Purchase awards as well as being honored with signature membership in the Pastel Society of America and other organizations. He holds Master Circle status with the International Association of Pastel Societies. He has exhibited at the National Arts Club, The Butler Institute of American Art and Haggin Museum. He is in all group shows at The Brinton Museum where he held a solo exhibition in 2011. Gary is represented by fine art galleries across the country.

More important than awards and praise, Gary seeks to paint according to his own sense of values. Feeling the profound importance of wild natural places and the small farms and ranches that are the cornerstones of America's independent spirit, these themes are repeated throughout his body of work. Combining naturalistic color with dynamic composition, scenes of peace and tranquility are charged with beauty, light and spirit.

The timeless essence of the great outdoors can be kept close at hand when you own an original impressionist painting by Gary Huber: truly one of today's most inspiring western American artists.
